PBA SCORPION CHAMPIONSHIP – GENERAL NOTES

DEFENDING CHAMPION

Tommy Jones, Simpsonville, SC, finished 41st in this year's event (222.80 avg. – 10 games)

THE PBA IN RENO

With the 2015 WSOB, the PBA Tour returned to the National Bowling Stadium (NBS) in Reno, NV, for the first time since 2011 when Tom Hess won the USBC Masters. The first PBA Tour event ever held in Reno was the 1978 PBA National Championship at the MGM Grand Lanes and was won by Warren Nelson. Including this year's 2017 PBA World Championship, Reno has hosted a total of 15 "majors" (11 USBC Masters events, one PBA Tournament of Champions and three PBA World Championships), with 12 of those "majors" taking place here at the NBS.

MOOKIE BETTS ENDS HIS WSOB IN STYLE

MLB and Boston Red Sox All-Star Outfielder Mookie Betts ended his 2017 WSOB in style as he fired a 300 game during his last block of qualifying in the PBA Scorpion Championship. Betts finished 144th in the Scorpion (203.10 average) and, over his 40 games of qualifying in the WSOB, finished tied for 158th (out of 195 entrants) in the PBA World Championship with a 205.60 average. Betts accomplished his goal of finishing the event with an average of better than 200 and improved upon his performance in the 2015 WSOB where he finished in 210th place (out of 238 entrants) with a 190.14 avg.

TACKETT SEEKS FOURTH WIN OF 2017

This event marks the only TV Finals appearance in the 2017 WSOB for E.J. Tackett. Tackett came into this year's WSOB having won three titles . . . tied with Jason Belmonte for most on the PBA Tour this year . . . and was considered the co-favorite for 2017 PBA Player of the Years along with Belmonte. Belmonte has had a strong WSOB, making the TV Finals in this event, plus the PBA Cheetah Championship and the PBA World Championship. Tackett will need a win in this event to keep himself in the running for PBA POY consideration.

TACKETT AND BELMONTE ENTERED WSOB 1-2 IN EARNINGS, AVERAGE

Coming into the 2017 WSOB, EJ Tackett and Jason Belmonte were tied for first in titles won on the PBA Tour this year (3) and were 1-2 in earnings and average. Tackett led in earnings ($198,008) and Belmonte was second ($146,412), while Belmonte led in average (226.10) with Tackett second (222.72).

TACKETT, BELMONTE AND THE $200,000 EARNINGS MARK

For the first time in his career, EJ Tackett will surpass the $200,000 mark in single-season earnings. Tackett entered this year's WSOB just shy of the mark ($198,008). His previous best year in earnings came last year when he was PBA Player of the Year and earned $168,290. Jason Belmonte also has a chance at surpassing the $200,000 mark as he entered the WSOB with $146,412 and has made the TV Finals in three events (PBA World Championship, PBA Cheetah Championship & this event) and will also earn money for finishing in the top two in the World Bowling Tour Finals. It would also be Belmonte's first time surpassing the $200,000 mark as his previous best was $186,464 in the 2012-13 season.

BELMONTE MAKES FINAL POY PUSH

Heading into the World Series of Bowling, most viewed Jason Belmonte and EJ Tackett as the frontrunners for 2017 PBA Player of the Year honors. Belmonte entered the WSOB with three wins this year, including two "majors" – the Barbasol PBA Players Championship & the USBC Masters. Tackett also entered the WSOB with three wins including one of the other "majors" this year - the FireLake PBA Tournament of Champions. A win by Belmonte in this event (and/or the PBA Cheetah Championship and/or the PBA World Championship) would go a long way toward him regaining the Player of the Year honor he held three consecutive years prior to last year when Tackett won the award. Should Belmonte not win any events in this WSOB, others still in contention besides Tackett include Rhino Page (two wins entering the WSOB including the other "major" at the U.S. Open) and Jesper Svensson, who had one win this year heading into the WSOB.

BABY NEEDS A NEW PAIR OF SHOES

Shawn Maldonado is still seeking his first PBA Tour title . . . perhaps his new baby daughter will bring him some good luck. Maldonado and Dolores Rodriguez welcomed Mia Bella Maldonado into the world on August 14. Maldonado also has a son (Dominic). The two-time PBA Southwest Region Player of the Year has finished as high as third on the PBA Tour . . . most recently at the 2016 U.S. Open in Las Vegas where he fell victim to Francois Lavoie's 300 game in the semifinal match of that event.

BACK-TO-BACK FOR NOVAK

Brandon Novak seems to like the Scorpion oil pattern here at the National Bowling Stadium. Last year, Novak made his first career TV Finals appearance in this event, but would end up fourth after shooting 175 on TV and failing to advance out of the opening four-man shoot-out match. Novak will look to improve upon that effort this year and capture his first PBA Tour title.

TELEVISED 300 GAME BONUS

Any finalist rolling a 300 game this week in the championship round will earn a $10,000 bonus.
